Welcome to Wonderland — a camp that holds both happiness and sadness, often within the very same day. This is where our story begins, in a place where a girl named Kindness was born, bringing light into a world shadowed by hardship.

Despite the somber surroundings, Kindness always found joy in the little things she had. Her heart brimmed with happiness, even in a place so many overlooked. Every day, she walked to the nearby dumping ground, a place marred by pollution and despair, searching for anything of worth.

In this desolate place, she collected scraps of metal and paper to sell, earning just enough to keep hunger away. Yet she never kept all the food for herself — Kindness always shared what little she had with the other children in Wonderland, finding joy in the act of giving.

Her life, though marked by scarcity, was rich with the happiness she found in sharing. She wandered the dumping ground not just to feed herself, but to care for anyone — or anything — in need. Despite the pollution all around her, each journey was filled with purpose and compassion.

In the spirit of spreading happiness, we're invited to walk beside Kindness through Wonderland — a land of hope nestled within the dumping ground, where sharing what little we have is what makes us rich.

And remember: spread the love. Share what you have, because kindness counts.
